Mari Meade is New York based choreographer, educator, and dancer. She is the Artistic Director of Mari Meade Dance Collective/MMDC which she began in 2009 after receiving the Kenan Fellowship at Lincoln Center Education. Meade was awarded the New York Choreographic Institute, where she created a works in progress on the dancers of New York City Ballet; UNCSA Choreographic Institute Development Residency; and was an Artist in Residence at Chez Bushwick, Triskelion Arts, CUNY Dance Initiative, and Lake Studios Berlin. Meade's work, "dialogue", won Spoke the Hub's Winter Follies and was a finalist at McCallum Theatre's Choreography Festival in 2017. She has shown work at the Clark Theatre at Lincoln Center; Danspace/St. Mark's Church; Judson Memorial Church; Battery Dance Festival; McCallum Theatre's Choreography Festival; ChopShop: Bodies of Work; Triskelion Arts; New Orleans Fringe Festival; Asheville Fringe Festival; Katlehong Arts Center (South Africa); and Lake Studios Berlin. She is a teaching artist for New York City Ballet and Dancing Classrooms, a board member at The Kenan Institute for the Arts, and the Associate Director of UNCSA Choreographic Institute.

Mari Meade's class for beginner to advanced dancers supports joy, bravery, and validation while sharing knowledge about dance techniques. Class begins on the floor with a warm up movement phrase, and as students come to standing, they explore a diverse movement vocabulary that draws from formal modern dance techniques (Limón, Cunningham, and Release). Throughout the class, students will explore concepts of "Brave space" and "Brave bodies," bringing an awareness to the interplay and importance of challenging physicality with intellect. The class will culminate in a movement phrase of Meade's choreography.
